Course Overview:

The "ISO 45001 Lead Auditor Certification Course: Master OH&S Auditing and Compliance Skills" is designed to equip professionals with the critical expertise to lead and conduct ISO 45001 audits effectively. Based on international best practices and incorporating ISO 19011 and ISO/IEC 17021-1 standards, this intensive course develops both technical audit capabilities and leadership skills. Participants will explore essential topics, including ISO 45001 clauses 4 to 10, risk-based auditing, compliance audit planning, audit evidence collection, nonconformity reporting, and corrective action evaluation. With a focus on occupational health and safety management systems OHSMS, the course combines theory with hands-on audit simulation activities, enhancing readiness for real-world ISO audits. On completion, attendees will be prepared for the ISO 45001 certification exam and eligible for globally recognized credentials, including PECB Certified Lead Auditor. This course supports professional development in health and safety, risk management, and international auditor certifications.

FAQ:

What specific qualifications or prerequisites are needed for participants before enrolling in the course?

While there are no mandatory prerequisites to attend the ISO 45001 Lead Auditor Certification Course, participants aiming for PECB certification must meet the following experience criteria after completing the course and passing the exam:

Provisional Auditor: No prior experience required.

Auditor: At least 2 years of professional experience, including 1 year in OH&S management, and 200 hours of audit activities.

Lead Auditor: At least 5 years of professional experience, with 2 years in OH&S management, and 300 hours of audit activities.

Senior Lead Auditor: 10 years of experience, including 7 years in OH&S management, and 1,000 hours of audit activities. All levels require signing the PECB Code of Ethics and passing the ISO 45001 Lead Auditor exam.

How long is each day's session, and is there a total number of hours required for the entire course?

Each day's session is generally structured to last around 4-5 hours, including breaks and interactive sessions. The complete course runs over five days, totaling 20-25 hours of instruction.

What are the differences between ISO 19011 and ISO/IEC 17021-1 in audit processes?

ISO 19011 provides comprehensive guidelines for auditing management systems, suitable for both internal and external audits. ISO/IEC 17021-1, on the other hand, outlines the requirements for bodies that audit and certify management systems, ensuring impartiality, competence, and consistency in third-party certification audits.

How This Course is Different from Other ISO 45001 Lead Auditor Courses:

Unlike standard auditor courses, this program immerses participants in practical audit simulations, aligning with both ISO 19011 and ISO/IEC 17021-1 audit standards. It goes beyond the basics by training professionals on leadership in audits, international certification standards, and real-world case analysis. Our course integrates advanced audit techniques such as risk-based and evidence-based auditing while offering resources like CPD-certified hours, mock exam access, and post-training consultation. Delivered by certified professionals, it ensures that each participant not only understands the theory but also builds competence in applying ISO 45001 audit techniques across industries. This is more than a training—it's your gateway to becoming a globally recognized ISO 45001 Lead Auditor.
