Professional Presence and Ethical Influence Course

Ref: 940_219220 Date: 15 – 19 November 2026 Location: Istanbul Fees: 4500 Euro

Overview

Professional Presence and Ethical Influence Course is a 1-week course for managers and client-facing professionals who leave with a Presence and Influence Playbook. Participants identify credibility signals, regulate composure, clarify intent, read stakeholder priorities, frame relevant messages, ask purposeful questions, adapt communication, and influence without formal authority. The course treats presence as consistent behavior and influence as an ethical alignment process. Agile Leaders Training Center provides this course on professional presence and ethical influence.

Who Should Attend

- Managers responsible for gaining alignment across teams without direct authority.
- Client-facing professionals responsible for establishing credibility in important conversations.
- Project leads responsible for influencing stakeholders with different priorities.
- Specialists responsible for presenting recommendations to decision-makers.
- Team leaders responsible for maintaining composure and trust during difficult discussions.

The course assumes participants already contribute in meetings and stakeholder conversations, and leaves out general public speaking, negotiation tactics, personal branding, and advanced leadership theory.

FAQs

Who suits Professional Presence and Ethical Influence and what does it assume?

Managers, project leads, client-facing professionals, and specialists suit the course. It assumes experience contributing in meetings and stakeholder conversations while excluding general public speaking, negotiation tactics, personal branding, and advanced leadership theory.

How does professional presence and ethical influence differ from a general communication course?

Professional presence and ethical influence focus on credibility signals, composure, stakeholder reading, message relevance, purposeful questions, trust, and alignment without formal authority rather than broad communication skills.

What creates credible professional presence?

Credible professional presence comes from consistent behavior, clear intent, relevant expertise, reliable follow-through, composed delivery, attentive listening, and communication choices suited to the situation.

How can professionals influence without formal authority?

Professionals can influence without authority by building trust, understanding stakeholder priorities, framing relevant evidence, asking purposeful questions, addressing concerns, and agreeing a useful next step.

What keeps workplace influence ethical?

Ethical workplace influence uses accurate information, transparent intent, proportionate evidence, respect for choice, acknowledgment of competing interests, and no concealed pressure or manipulation.

Conclusion

Participants take back a Presence and Influence Playbook connecting credibility, composure, stakeholder reading, message framing, questions, and ethical choices. The playbook helps participants prepare for conversations where authority alone cannot create alignment. It also provides evidence for reviewing how presence and influence affect trust, decisions, and follow-through.
