Professional Arabic Business Writing and Correspondence Training Course

Ref: 1746_231208 Date: 10 – 14 May 2027 Location: Kuala Lumpur Fees: 5200 Euro

Overview

Professional Arabic Business Writing and Correspondence Training Course is a one-week course for Arabic-speaking professionals, administrators, managers, executive support staff, and communication teams who leave with an Arabic Workplace Writing and Quality File. Participants apply professional Arabic business writing, Arabic administrative correspondence, Arabic report writing, Arabic email writing, and Arabic document editing to real workplace needs. The course resolves unclear wording, inconsistent terminology, weak structure, and avoidable language errors through planning, drafting, review, and approval tools. Agile Leaders Training Center develops professional Arabic workplace writing practice.

Who Should Attend

- Administrative functions responsible for formal letters, memoranda, minutes, and internal correspondence
- Executive support functions responsible for decision records, briefings, follow-up messages, and document coordination
- Management functions responsible for reports, recommendations, approvals, and written instructions
- Communication functions responsible for Arabic wording, terminology, tone, and editorial consistency
- Quality functions responsible for document review, controlled templates, and approval evidence

The course assumes participants regularly draft or review workplace documents in Arabic and leaves out English writing, translation, calligraphy, branding, academic research, and automated content generation.

- Suggested activity: rewrite a healthcare service letter for clear purpose, respectful tone, and complete action details.
- Suggested activity: prepare a procurement email sequence with a request, clarification, confirmation, and documented follow-up.
- Suggested activity: turn project meeting notes into concise minutes with decisions, owners, deadlines, and escalation points.
- Suggested activity: assemble the Arabic Workplace Writing and Quality File with templates, terminology controls, review evidence, and approval records.

FAQs

Who suits professional Arabic business writing training, and what does it assume?

Professional Arabic business writing training suits personnel who draft or review Arabic workplace documents. It assumes practical workplace responsibility and working Arabic proficiency, while leaving out language teaching for beginners, translation, academic writing, and calligraphy.

How does professional Arabic business writing differ from English business writing or translation training?

Professional Arabic business writing starts with Arabic purpose, structure, register, terminology, punctuation, and reader expectations. English writing training develops English documents, while translation training transfers meaning between languages rather than building original Arabic workplace texts.

What makes Arabic administrative correspondence clear and actionable?

Clear Arabic administrative correspondence states the purpose early, organizes evidence logically, uses direct Modern Standard Arabic, identifies the required action and owner, applies suitable tone, removes repetition, and records supporting references and follow-up.

How should Arabic workplace documents be reviewed before approval?

Arabic workplace documents should be reviewed through separate passes for purpose and completeness, structure and logic, language and terminology, then format, version, approval, and release evidence. Separating the passes reduces missed errors and unclear ownership.

Conclusion

Participants take an Arabic Workplace Writing and Quality File back to work. It connects planning grids, correspondence templates, report structures, terminology controls, editing checklists, and approval records. It changes improvised Arabic drafting into a repeatable workflow for clear, consistent, and accountable workplace documents.
