FAQ:

What qualifications or requirements are needed for participants before registering for the course?

This course is suitable for board members, executive managers, and executive committee staff. There are no specific academic requirements; however, practical experience in management and corporate governance is preferred.

How long is each daily session, and what is the total number of course hours?

Each daily session lasts approximately 4–5 hours, including breaks and interactive activities. The course runs for five days, with a total duration of 20–25 training hours.

How can the effectiveness of corporate governance be evaluated in companies with multiple committees before making strategic decisions?

This can be achieved by reviewing the performance of the board and executive committees, monitoring compliance with policies and procedures, assessing integrity and transparency in financial reporting, and measuring the level of interaction between executive management and stakeholders.

How This Course Differs from Other Courses:

This course stands out by combining theoretical governance concepts with practical application, while focusing on all levels of corporate management, from the board of directors to the CEO and executive committees. It is based on international best practices and covers the development of board and committee member skills, the management of formal meetings, strategic decision-making, performance monitoring, and enterprise risk management.

The course provides a comprehensive blend of theoretical learning and interactive training, using real-life case studies and simulation exercises to ensure that participants acquire skills that can be applied directly in the workplace. In addition, the course focuses on institutional excellence and ensuring governance effectiveness across different types of organizations, including investment companies, government entities, and private institutions. This makes it a comprehensive and distinctive training experience compared to traditional courses that focus on only one aspect of governance.
